Harmonic analysis is sort of like music math. We're looking very discerningly at a given piece of music and analyzing the harmony. Why the harmony? Why not the melody? Well, we look at the melody, too, but the harmony in particular is important because it shows us how to understand the chords (or chord structures) that were used by the composer.

Still living, living in yesterday I'm not gonna, I'm not gonna react I'm not scared, I'm not gonna be trapped There's no vision, there's no vision today
Still living, living in yesterday I know I can feel it Just as tangible and as vivid as the moment that I'm in So clear Swim through the sea of pretenders
Without you I'm a broken man
