Created In Gods Image Anthony

In Created in God's Image (1994), Anthony Hoekema (1913-1988) appraises Biblical anthropology in a comprehensive way, but also brings to light modern thinking on the areas that continue to develop or remain contentious. In doing so, he opens up the student of scripture to important conversations, ideas, and impacts that make biblical anthropology important and engaging.

This is the most vital aspect of being made in God's image since, Hoekema argues, we are to image God functionally even as we are the image of God structurally (68-73). After giving much attention to defining and arguing for a meaning for the doctrine of the imago Dei in chapters three through five, Hoekema then moves to discuss the origin, transmission, and nature of sin in fallen man.

And the text for being in the image of God, and staying in the image of God, would be Genesis 1:27: "God created man in his own image, in the image of God he created him; male and female he created them" — man and woman equally in the image of God as we were made.

What Does It Mean to Be Made in God's Image? | Desiring God

Humankind was created to be a graphic image of the Creator — a formal, visible, and understandable representation of who God is and what He's really like. Piper writes, "The imago Dei is not a quality possessed by man; it is a condition in which man lives, a condition of confrontation established and maintained by the Creator. ..."

At the heart of Hoekema's argument is the frame of redemptive history. The image of God is understood in light of Creation (created in God's image), the Fall (the image of God in man distorted), the redemption of Christ (renewal of the image of God in man), and the final glorification of the saints (perfection of the image of God in man).

Part of being made in God's image is that Adam had the capacity to make free choices. Although they were given a righteous nature, Adam and Eve made an evil choice to rebel against their Creator. In so doing, they marred the image of God within themselves, and passed that damaged likeness on to all of their descendants (Romans 5:12).

Human life is valued based on the image of God, which is the basis of human dignity. It also has to do with how I see myself and recognizing that I am created in God's image, and that's the sense of my worth and my value and my meaning before God. And then we also have to realize that because of sin, we marred the image of God. It's defaced.
