This myth says that if you were to drop a penny from the top of the Empire State Building, it would accelerate to the point that it could kill a person on the sidewalk below. This is just bad physics. In reality, the penny will reach terminal velocity of about 30-100 miles per hour depending on the wind.

Eventually the system knows this one is not going to run at the first show of upset, and it begins to change. One by one people do get beyond hurts and the endless seeking of love and approval and begin to accept the change. Cutoff or estrangement is simply a way to let the family anxiety converge on blaming someone instead of solving problems.
