One man's horrific memoir of sexual abuse at the hands of his all-American father. The book opens in Tallahassee, Fla., just after the Cuban missile crisis. Nine-year-old Walter de Milly is awakened by his father, who leads him to their backyard bomb shelter, bolts the heavy lead door, and abuses him. Shortly thereafter, the child watches his father drive to his job at the bank, "his white ...

Fanny Crosby's words are the heartbeat of this ministry called, "Our Father's Arms." We began in 1996 in and old dilapidated, abandoned house, providing a place for prodigal sons to come home. We have since expanded and been allowed the privilege of offering hope and providing opportunities for women, children and families as well.
