Saving June Hannah Harrington

Hannah Harrington is the exception that proves the rule. This lady is American and what is more, Saving June is her debut novel. Harper's life is in pieces. Her sister June unexplainably committed suicide a few weeks before graduating and her family is, quite understandably, a wreck.

Saving June by Hannah Harrington - Goodreads

Saving June took me a while to get into, I thought it started off quite slowly and I didn't immediately click with all the characters. It wasn't until about halfway through that I really appreciated the story Hannah Harrington had told, a story of loss and friendship and overcoming one of the worst things a family can face.

Hannah Harrington | Young Adult Author

REVIEW: Saving June by Hannah Harrington. Jennie B Reviews music / road trip / Suicide / Young-Adult 6 Comments. Dear Ms. Harrington, I've been wanting to read more YA; the genre seems to have changed so much since I was a, well, young adult.

REVIEW: Saving June by Hannah Harrington

It's clear from the start that high-school senior June, days away from graduation, is past saving, since 16-year-old Harper begins her account on the day of her sister's funeral. Escaping trite funereal platitudes, Harper takes refuge in the backyard and encounters hunky Jake, an apparent friend of June's. She quickly figures out that the oldies mix June listened to as she killed herself was ...

SAVING JUNE by Hannah Harrington | Kirkus Reviews

— Hannah Harrington, quote from Saving June “I still go to bed sad, and wake up sad, and it still hurts like hell, but there are moments during the day when it hurts less. Sometimes I can think of June and not want to burst into tears or put my fist through a wall.

I received Saving June by Hannah Harrington from Mira Ink for review. I really enjoyed reading Saving June, even though it wasn't what I had initially expected. From the blurb, I had expected it to be quite raw, edgy and controversial, but it was actually fairly tame compared to some other YA books within the same genre, (such as Entangled & Torn by Cat Clarke and Before I Fall by Lauren ...
