pterodactyl, but the word you should be using for these wide-winged beasts is pterosaur. Also, despite their nearly constant association with dinosaurs, including in movies like Jurassic Park, these prehistoric creatures were not dinosaurs. That sort of misclassification is akin to calling a human being a spider monkey.

Pterodactyl Dinosaur: Size, Wingspan, Habitat and Other Facts

One pterodactyl swoops in and picks her up, taking her to his nest. She fully expects to be eaten by the massive beast, but when it starts to peck her clothes away, leaving her naked, she begins to understand that the pterodactyl might have another, more deviant use for the young virgin."

Compared to the other vertebrate flying groups, the birds and bats, pterosaur skulls were typically quite large. Most pterosaur skulls had elongated jaws. Their skull bones tend to be fused in adult individuals. Early pterosaurs often had heterodont teeth, varying in build, and some still had teeth in the palate. In later groups the teeth mostly became conical.
