not by enumerating all phenomena and unifying all possible theories. Finally, while sensitivity to theory and awareness of its diverse forms and purposes is a normal part of the training of social scientists, the integration of constructs belonging to different theories is an under-explored problem of method [88].

General access is derived as a theoretical ideal that would be measured for all places, all modes, all purposes, at all times, over the lifecycle of a project. It is posited that more general access measures better explain spatial location phenomena.

Experiences are a main issue in tourism.

However, the conceptual configuration of experiences in tourism has proved to be difficult. The English word 'experience' is rather neutral and vague; it can be understood to cover all kind of things that a person has passed
